A Homecoming of Sorts

This is a homecoming of sorts for Gary Moeller, the second year head coach of Illinois. Moeller, who played his college football at Ohio State and was team captain as a senior in 1962, is making his first appearance at his alma mater as a head coach. Oh, he has been here before as an assistant to Bo Schembechler at Michigan, but today's game has to be something special for the Lima native.

"The thing that I remember most about Gary as a player is that he was a tough, hard-nosed kid," recalls OSU Coach Woody Hayes, who recruited Moeller out of Lima Senior High School. "He fought every step of the way, always gave it everything he had."

Moeller probably could not have picked a worse time to return to the land of his youth. The Buckeyes are currently riding a three-game winning streak and appear to be ready to finally jell both offensively and defensively.

In its last three games the Buckeye offense has rolled up 143 points and gained more than 1200 yards. Meanwhile the defense has yielded just 41 points, has started to make the Big Play, is giving the offense good field position and has come up with nine interceptions in its last three games.

"The defense played its best game of the year last week at Wisconsin," offered Hayes, following his team's 49-14 victory. "They bailed us out on several occasions, really played aggressively."

No matter that Wisconsin gained 327 yards against the Buckeyes. Much of that came against the second unit. A much more important figure is the 62 yards given up via the pass. That's far and away the low total of the year and a very encouraging sign.

"We are getting better every game, says secondary coach Gary Tranquill, who has been battling injuries and inexperience all year. "We have some great athletes back there. I hope we have turned the corner now."

The OSU secondary will have to turn that corner without boundary halfback Ray Ellis, however. The Canton sophomore suffered a shoulder separation at Wisconsin and will probably be lost for the season.

"It's like playing musical chairs back there," lamented Tranquill. "Some one gets hurt every week. But we will make out somehow. Injuries are a part of the game."

Tranquill has special praise for senior Lenny Mills. A sometimes starter the past two years at the boundary position, the Miami, Fla. native sprained an ankle in fall practice and missed the first four games of the season. He returned against Purdue as the starting cornerback and has been a fixture there ever since.

"He has been the glue that holds us together back there," noted Gary. "He is really having a fine year."

What kind of team will Illinois bring to Columbus? Well, the Illini have had their problems of late, not winning in their last five games. But that doesn't tell the entire story according to Hayes.

"Illinois has actually played pretty well the last couple of weeks, especially in the first half," points out Woody. "They trailed Purdue just seven 7-0 at the half and Purdue scored very late in the second period. And last week against Michigan State the score was 14-12 at the half (MSU's favor). As a matter of fact, Illinois was still in the ball game at the beginning of the fourth quarter, but just ran out of steam. They have some talent and I am sure Coach Moeller will have his team ready to play."

Offensively, the Illini are led by fullback Wayne Strader, who has 384 yards on 72 carries, and quarterback Rich Weiss. Weiss has connected on 49 of 87 passes for 563 yards and two touchdowns. He has also carried the ball 111 times for 207 yards.

The Illini defense centers around linebacker John Sullivan. Sullivan, who holds the Illinois career tackle record (he broke Dick Butkus' mark earlier this year), has 115 tackles on the season. Linebacker John Gillen has 105.

Buck Bits . . .

Vince Skillings and Tim Vogler were the top Buckeye award winners last week at Wisconsin. Skillings, a sophomore safety, was named Buck of the Week and Vogler was honored as Lineman of the Week. Skillings made six tackles and intercepted two passes, returning one 61 yards for a touchdown, while Vogler, a senior center from Covington, graded out to 73 percent against Badger middle guard Dan Relich.

Skillings

Vogler

Skillings' return was the third longest in the Big Ten this year, and the 96-yard kickoff return by sophomore Tyrone Hicks is the longest this season. The latter is not a record, however. That mark belongs to former Buckeye Bill Wentz, who went 100 yards against Illinois in 1960.

All-American linebacker Tom Cousineau goes into today's game with 169 tackles, 15 total participations short of his own school record of 184 set in 1976. Cousineau is averaging an amazing 21.1 tackles a game.

Cousineau

Hicks

The latest Big Ten stats show the Buckeyes leading the league in rushing and second in both total offense and scoring. Individually, Skillings leads the conference in interceptions with five, Mike Guess is second in punt returns, Tom Orosz second in punting and Ty Hicks third in kick returns. Vlade Janakievski, who has hit 31 of 33 extra points this year, is sixth in kick scoring.

Stadium supervision not easy

It's Saturday morning. Kickoff time for the big college football game is just hours away. A medical team has gathered to make sure everything is ready. Stretchers? Check. Oxygen? Yes. Are all personnel briefed, know where they are to be stationed and ready for any emergency?

Is all this elaborate planning needed so a player will be properly administered to should he go down on the field of play with a knee injury? No, this life campus police chief Gale Gade. "The logistics of looking after a 'city' of people are tremendous. Traffic control, parking, guarding against theft, finding lost kids, controlling the alcohol problem, breaking up fights—this and much more in addition to the health and medical problems which arise."

Gade lists heart attacks at the top of his "serious" list. "In addition," he says, "we have everything from kids had 16 cases of complete cardiac arrest and saved 14 of them."

Emergency CPR (cardiac-pulmonary resuscitation) instruction has helped. "Many businesses are requiring their employees to complete the two-session classes of instruction," Dr. Carveth says. "It's our goal that one out of every four people in the state will have learned the technique."

Even though a litter-bearing rescue team is within a minute of any seat in the Nebraska stadium, Dr. Carveth says a doctor, nurse or other CPR-trained person in that part of the stands likely will have already started emergency treatment.

CPR (chest massage), oxygen and IV (intravenous) treatment is started as the patient is strapped into the litter. Then comes the quick run down the steps to the room under the stands where the heart team waits with a defibrillation machine.

"We often have that secondary treatment started, the patient in the ambulance and on the way to the hospital under the care of the heart team members within five minutes," Dr. Carveth says proudly.

"Most of the calls for assistance are far less dramatic than the heart cases," university health engineer Del Weed, who coordinates the overall effort, admits. "Sometimes a bandaid is all that's needed."

The most unusual case? That came when a recently recovered heart attack patient insisted on seeing the next game. His doctor wouldn't let him attend without some precautionary measures being taken.

So, the heart team wired the fanatic fan. From the emergency room beneath the stands they were able to monitor the man's breathing, heart-beat and blood pressure.

"Some fans are really crazy," Weed insists. "One team of litter carriers brought down a man suffering severe chest pains. After easing his distress, the heart team turned away for a moment to get the ambulance in place to take the man to the hospital. Suddenly the patient jumped up, ran out and disappeared in the crowd. He didn't want to miss the rest of the game."

Hopefully, such medical assistance won't be needed here today. But it's comforting to know that the colleges of the country are as concerned over the welfare of the fan in the stands as for the player on the field.

support group was organized to look after the fan—whether it's a scraped knee from a fall while rushing up the stadium steps or the life-and-death matter of cardiac arrest.

While such emergency medical rescue units are becoming common in stadiums across the country, many are patterned after the pioneer in the field—the University of Nebraska in Lincoln.

"It was a truly innovative idea when we started to provide advanced life support for the fan in the mid-1960s," recalls cardiovascular surgeon Dr. Steve Carveth. "We didn't have any guidelines to follow."

This is not the only point on which the Nebraska situation is unique. Every Cornhusker football game since 1962 has been a sellout. More unusual is the fact that Memorial Stadium in Lincoln, on the Saturday of any home football game, becomes the third-largest "city" in the state of Nebraska.

"First there is Omaha, then Lincoln and then the 76,000 who cram into the stadium for every game," reminds who get cut on the barbed wire while climbing the fence to sneak in to those who can be seriously hurt in a fall. And, there are those who need a couple of aspirin for a tension headache—especially if the game is close or the Huskers are losing."

More than 300 people are directly involved in watching over the welfare of the fans.

"Four law enforcement agencies—the campus and city police, the sheriff's department and the state patrol—plus the Red Cross, the heart team and the adult-supervised Boy Scout ushers are coordinated together," Gade says.

Speed in responding to a heart attack is the key to success, Dr. Carveth says.

"Across the nation, the 'save' rate for a person who suffers cardiac arrest—a person who is not breathing and has no pulse—is only about four to five per cent," Dr. Carveth notes. "That's because trained help can't arrive quickly enough. In our stadium, the success rate is 87 per cent. We've

Vince Makes Badgers Wince

Vince Skillings won't soon forget his first two Ohio State-Wisconsin games.

Last year Skillings had his freshman year abruptly ended against Wisconsin when he tore a ligament in his knee. The tear required surgery and Vince, a promising defensive back who had played in six of the Buckeyes' first eight games, was forced to miss the remainder of the season, including the Sugar Bowl. It was, in his words, "the low point of my football career."

But if last year's game with the Badgers was the low point of Vince's still young career, last Saturday's game with that same Wisconsin team has to rank as the high water mark.

Now the starting safety for the Buckeyes, the 5-11, 170-pound speedster came up with two interceptions, including one that he returned for a 61-yard touchdown. He also had six tackles and helped deflect a punt that was recovered for a touchdown in the Buckeyes' convincing 49-14 win over the Badgers.

Skillings, who received a game ball following the game and then on Sunday was named Buck of the Week (top defensive player), will long remember the thrill of his first college touchdown.

"That's the first touchdown I ever scored on defense," said the former all-stater from Brenizer, PA. "I scored a lot as a high school tailback, but it has been a long time since I have seen the official raise his hands when I had the ball."

A former prep state sprint champion as a senior (he has run a 9.6 100), Skillings feels he has improved drastically since the start of the season. "At the beginning of the season, I just did not know enough," he evaluates. "But now I have the necessary experience and, as a result, I am more confident, more relaxed and more aggressive."

The 19-year old communications major (he wants to go into either radio or television) has four interceptions in his last two games and six on the year, tops on the team.

"I am playing the ball much better now because of my confidence, I'm not afraid to make a mistake," he says.

The Baylor game (Ohio State's third of the year) represents a turning point for Skillings. "Their quarterback (Steve Smith) threw three touchdown passes that afternoon and two of them were in my zone," he recalls. "I told myself after the game that I had better get on the stick or I would find myself sitting on the bench, and I sure didn't want that to happen."

The talented sophomore evidently did an excellent job of listening to himself. All six intercepts have come since the Baylor contest, and he is playing his best ball of the year, according to a guy who should know, secondary coach Gary Tranquill.

"Vince is just getting better every game," evaluates Tranquill. "But you would expect that. He gives us his all every game and every practice. He's a great young man."

Head Coach Woody Hayes

A legend in his own lifetime, Woody Hayes is now in his 28th year at Ohio State.

Coming into the 1978 season, the 65-year old Hayes owned 231 career victories in 32 years as a head coach. That total placed him second among all active major college coaches in number of wins and left him in fourth place on the all-time victory list.

In 27 seasons at Ohio State, Woody has amassed 198 victories, an average of 7.3 per season. His Big Ten record as of last November was 146-35-9 and included 13 conference titles and ten major bowl appearances. Under Hayes, the Buckeyes have either won outright or shared the conference title each of the last six years, an accomplishment that is unprecedented in Big Ten history.

Additionally, over the past 25 years, Hayes-coached teams have posted a record of 183-46-7. That works out to a winning percentage of .790, the best winning percentage in college football during the last quarter of a century.

Listed below are some of Coach Hayes' many accomplishments coming into the current campaign:

- * A 32-year record of 231-68-9
- * A record of 198-57-9 at Ohio State
- * 25 winning seasons in 27 tries
- * A current string of 11 consecutive winning seasons
- * Three national titles
- * 13 Big Ten titles
- * Six consecutive Big Ten titles
- * Six consecutive major bowl appearances
- * Twice Coach of the Year
- * 57 First team all-Americans
- * Four Heisman Trophy winners

Thumbs Up For The Voglers!

OSU'S Double Trouble Twins

Buckeye seniors Tim and Terry Vogler are identical twins. Born five minutes apart (Tim's the oldest), the Voglers look, talk and play football alike (hard).

Why, the Voglers are just like two coats cut from the same piece of cloth. If you don't believe it, just ask them. "He's good looking, I'm good looking," says Terry, motioning to his brother with a chuckle.

"I'll tell you some differences between us," says Tim. "He's married and I'm not, and he likes peas and I don't."

The Voglers obviously pride themselves on being alike, but recently they carried the identical twin bit a little too far.

Tim, Ohio State's starting center, has been sporting a cast on his left hand the past few weeks, after breaking his thumb against SMU. Well, in the Northwestern game, brother Terry followed suit, injuring his left thumb. Now both twin brothers have casts on the same hand.

"I guess we were just lucky this time," says Terry. "We both got injured in the same place."

As it turns out, Tim was a little more lucky than Terry. Tim has been shedding his cast on game days the past four weeks, and has played against Iowa, Northwestern and Wisconsin. Protected by a splint and bandage in the games, he gets the cast put back on his hand during the following week.

Terry suffered a chipped bone on his left thumb. The injury may keep him out of action the rest of the season. OSU's top reserve linebacker, Terry had just turned in one of his best performances against Northwestern. The younger of the two Vogler brothers had six solo tackles and three assists against the Wildcats.

It was Terry who caused a big split when he got married last winter. For the 20 years prior to that, the Voglers had been roommates, both at home and during their first two years at OSU. The two are still best buddies, but Terry's wife Sharlene and son Joshua are a big part of the family now.

"We're a lot alike," says Tim. "We like to do the same things."

Whether it's playing football for the Buckeyes, hunting and fishing or just clowning around, the Voglers enjoy doing things together. Even though Terry is married, Tim has an apartment across the street. And, he's a frequent visitor in his brother's home.

You can bet folks in Covington, Ohio (pop. 3,200) still talk about the Vogler twins. With the two teaming up at linebacker on defense, Tim playing fullback and Terry tight end on offense, Covington compiled a 19-1 record during the Voglers' junior and senior years.

"Yeah, we had pretty good teams at Covington," says Terry, "even though there were only 32 players on the varsity and jayvee squads put together." During a 10-0 season in 1973, Covington gave up only 27 points and earned state champion honors from the UPI writers.

The Voglers also played forward in basketball, leading Covington to a 17-4 record in their senior year. In track, the two teamed up in the discus and shot put, qualifying for the state meet their last two seasons.

"We were the fat men in track," said Tim with a smile. "At the meets, we'd go out and throw the shot and discus and then take a break. While our teammates were out there straining in the other events, we were usually eating hotdogs."

Terry was captain of all three high school teams his senior year.

The Voglers' football exploits were more than enough to attract a number of college scouts. At first, the twins thought they might end up at different schools.

"The Ohio State coaches seemed to be interested only in Tim," Terry recalls. "I figured I'd probably go to a small school. Then I think they saw some film of me playing. They decided to offer us both scholarships."

Tim made all-state fullback in high school and has played five different positions for the Buckeyes. He found a home at center last year and has been an OSU starter ever since. The elder of the two Vogler twins recalls the opener of a year ago against Miami (Fla.).

"That was the highlight of my whole career," says Tim. "It was my first game as a starter." Tim is an offensive co-captain for the Bucks this season. He has been invited to play in the Japan Bowl, a collegiate all-star contest, set for January in Japan.

Terry has also made significant contributions to the Buckeye football program. He saw action in 11 games last season as a reserve linebacker and member of the specialty teams. OSU coaches praise Terry for his good understanding of defensive tactics.

Even before the thumb injury, Terry's playing time this season had been limited by a pulled hamstring.

A bit heavier at 230 pounds to Terry's 220, Tim is a half inch shorter at 6-2½ than Terry's 6-3. The brothers' similarity in appearance has caused some people problems over the years.

At Terry's wedding last winter, Sharlene's grandmother mistook Tim for Terry. She told him he'd have to settle down now that he's a married man.

Tim, however, has no plans to follow his brother's lead down the road to matrimony any time soon. "It's single city for me," says Tim.

The brothers claim they're as much alike in other ways as they are in physical appearance, but Terry's wife Sharlene disagrees.

"Tim covers up his feelings more than Terry," she says. "He always acts more gruff than he really is. He'll dog you for weeks and then he'll say something nice.

"I guess it's a part of being married," said the pert brunette, "but, Terry is a soft touch. He can't turn down anybody for anything."

A hunting accident in high school served to differentiate the Voglers somewhat.

It was early in December and Terry was out hunting. "This guy was swinging his shotgun around and pulling the hammer back," Terry said. "It just went off and hit me in the left ankle. I spent five weeks in the hospital and missed my birthday (Dec. 20), Christmas, and New Year's Day.

"I got a hole in my leg from the accident," says Terry. "I guess that's at least one way the two of us are different."

"There was even a rumor going around that Terry had tried to committ suicide," said Tim with a laugh.

At OSU, Tim is pursuing independent study in the arts and sciences area, while Terry is an industrial arts major. Neither is certain about what he wants to do after graduation.

The Voglers could probably be a hit as a stand-up comedy team, but Terry says that wouldn't work."

"Nobody could afford us," he quipped.

Veterinary Research Touches All

Each time a dog or kennel license is purchased in about one-fourth of Ohio's counties, 10 cents goes for research in Ohio State University's College of Veterinary Medicine.

Small investment, big dividends! It supports 21 research projects in the college, from animal cancer to animal population control to heart, kidney and bone disease. In almost all instances, medical studies on dog diseases produce results which are applicable to similar diseases in other animals, including man.

The third college of veterinary medicine established in the United States (1885), Ohio State has graduated more veterinarians than any U.S. university and is tops nationally in enrollment.

It is ranked fourth in the country in the quality of its teaching, research and service, as rated by veterinary deans surveyed by "Change" magazine.

Students are exposed to all aspects of diagnosis, treatment and disease prevention at the college's five-year-old hospital. The facility, which treats 26,000 animals a year, includes 90 box stalls for large animals, 21 small animal wards, 19 operating rooms and specially equipped areas for treatment in ophthalmology, dermatology, dentistry, physical therapy and diagnosis of heart and brain disorders.

Eight specially equipped cars and a branch hospital at Marysville provide student instruction and experience in farm animal practice.

The college operates an equine research center which tests horses before and after races for the Ohio Racing Commission to control drug use.

Twice a week, faculty and students make regularly scheduled service trips to the Columbus Zoo.

Striving to maintain excellence, the college is:

- Using $500,000 appropriated this year by the Legislature for renovation and purchase of major equipment.

- Requesting, through the Ohio Board of Regents, $4.4 million next year for updating facilities and equipment in pre-clinical instruction.

- Appealing to alumni and others for help in acquiring photography and television equipment and in funding a chair in comparative toxicology and a professorship in international veterinary preventive medicine.

(The college's department of preventive medicine, established in 1934, was the first in the U.S.)

Dean of the college since 1972 has been C. Roger Smith Jr., a Hartville, O., native and 1944 graduate of the college. He is a member of the American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine, past president of the American Academy of Veterinary Cardiology and was on an advisory committee of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Associate Dean Vernon L. Tharp is president of the American Veterinary Medicine Association. R. Bruce Hohn, professor of orthopedic surgery in the college, was the American Animal Hospital Association's veterinarian of the year two years ago.

The five-year-old Veterinary Hospital at 1935 Coffee Rd. has facilities for treatment of 26,000 animals every year.

Meet the OSU Football Staff

Over the years college football has become a game of great complexities and enormous intricacies, making it necessary for every head coach to surround himself with a staff of capable, hard working, knowledgeable assistants.

"A coach is only as good as his assistants," declares Ohio State coach Woody Hayes, unhesitatingly. "The game has become too specialized for one man to do it all by himself."

Accordingly, Hayes has put together a staff of eight full-time assistants, who aid him in the task of making the Ohio State program one of the most successful in the country.

Here is that staff for you to meet:

GEORGE CHAUMP — With the retirement last spring of Esco Sarkkinen, Chaump becomes the senior assistant on the OSU staff in terms of length of service. A 1958 graduate of Bloomsburg State, George has been with the Buckeyes since 1968 as quarterback and split end coach. He has developed a number of standout signal callers in those ten years, including Rex Kern, Cornelius Greene and Rod Gerald. While a high school coach at John Harris High School in Harrisburg, Chaump, who has introduced many innovative ideas at OSU, posted a six year record of 58-4.

GEORGE HILL — The Buckeyes' defensive coordinator and linebacker coach, George is in his eighth year on the OSU staff. Under Hill's guidance the Ohio State defense has become one of the most formidable in college football, annually ranking near the top in most of the NCAA's defensive statistics. Over the past five seasons, the OSU defense has allowed an average of just 9.7 points a game. Hill, who has also coached at Findlay College, Denison, Cornell and Duke, has produced a number of great linebackers, including two-time all-American Randy Gradishar.

MICKEY JACKSON — A former standout running back at Marshall, where as a senior he finished fourth nationally in scoring, Mickey coaches the running backs at Ohio State. He holds the distinction of being the only coach in the history of college football to produce consecutive Heisman Trophy winners, Archie Griffin in 1974 and 1975. Following his graduation from Marshall, he spent four years at his alma mater as coach of the offensive backs and receivers. In early 1974 he accepted a similar position at Miami (O.), but left the Oxford, O. school after just six months to join the Buckeyes.

ALEX GIBBS — In four years at Ohio State, Alex has become one of the Buckeyes' most popular coaches. He has also impressed everyone with his knowledge of the game and great enthusiasm. When Alex joined the staff he was assigned to the offensive guards and centers. The next year the staff was realigned and Alex moved to the defense, where he coached the down linemen. There were more changes last year and Alex moved back to the offense to again tutor the guards and centers. A native of North Carolina, Gibbs is a graduate of Davidson.

DAVE ADOLPH — A member of the OSU staff since January of 1977, Dave coaches the defensive tackles and middle guards for the Buckeyes. A graduate of Akron, where he was an outstanding athlete and scholar, prior to coming to Ohio State, Adolph coached at Akron, Connecticut, Kentucky and Illinois. He turned out his first OSU all-American last year, middle guard Aaron Brown.

BILL MYLES — In his second year at Ohio State, Bill coaches the offensive ends and tackles for the Buckeyes. His prize pupil last year was Chris Ward, who was a consensus all-American and voted as the nation's top lineman by the College Football Writers. A native of Kansas City, Missouri, Myles is a graduate of Drake, where he played center and linebacker. After graduation he spent seven years as a high school coach before moving on to the University of Nebraska as freshman coach. He later coached the offensive line and linebackers for the Cornhuskers.

GARY TRANQUILL — Like Myles, Gary is in his second year with the Buckeyes. A graduate of Wittenberg, where he was a Little all-America quarterback, Tranquill coaches the defensive secondary at OSU. The winner of eight varsity letters at Wittenberg, Gary coached eight years at his alma mater, working with the defensive backs. He has also coached at Ball State, Bowling Green and Navy. He was the secondary coach at Ball State and BG, but worked with the quarterbacks and wide receivers at Navy.

GLEN MASON — A 1972 graduate of Ohio State, Glen is the newest member of the Buckeye staff, signing on in April as a replacement for Esco Sarkkinen as coach of the outside linebackers. Mason won a varsity football letter as a reserve middle guard for the Buckeyes in 1970. He was slated to start the following year, but a broken ankle ended his playing career. He began coaching in 1972 at Ball State and has also coached at Allegheny College, Iowa State and Illinois.

Hindsight is always better than foresight, and that's what makes the Buckeye Grid-a-Phone Show on WBNS Radio the liveliest, most controversial and most entertaining wrap-up to an afternoon of Ohio State Football. Live from the Jai-Lai Restaurant right after every Buckeye game, WBNS Sports Director John Gordon, Roy Dittman and P. J. Ryal bring you game highlights, interviews from the Stadium, and up-to-the-minute scores from across the nation.

And they field calls from those wonderfully happy (and terribly irate) Buckeye fans who colorfully express their opinions on the game.

Football's First Broadcasters

Graham McNamee actually wasn't all that conversant with the intricacies of college football, but when he described a game in those earliest days of network radio, he convinced you that it was the most exciting, most colorful, most thrilling event in the history of mankind—right up to that afternoon.

Ted Husing utilized a voice gifted with resonant "lows" that made his narration of an 80-yard run sound as though it had been composed for recital on a cathedral pipe organ.

Bill Munday made every stadium broadcasting booth seem as though it were located on Peachtree Street, and a nation of football fans was fascinated with his terminology that referred to the huddle as "crap-shootin' formation" and the end zone as the "land of milk and honey."

In the late 1920s, radio was something new, and network radio was even newer. There was an early marriage of college football and network radio that led to the fantastic growth and glamorization of both.

In those early days of college football broadcasting, the miracle was simply the transmission of the human voice from one part of the nation to all parts of the land. The quality of the performance, as far as football technology was concerned, was deemed unimportant.

To be qualified to do a football broadcast, one needed only the ability to "ad-lib" to work without a script.

The early college football broadcasters did most of their own preparation, although Husing's assistants—Les Quailey and Jimmy Dolan—became well known. Sports information directors were unknown. The announcer got the starting lineup by going to the coach on the field while the teams warmed up. Bill Munday, doing a game between Southern Cal and Notre Dame, went down through the stands, onto the field, got a lineup from Knute Rockne which he wrote on the back of an envelope that he pulled from his pocket and then the other from Howard Jones which he transcribed similarly. That custom persisted for many years.

As the years wore on, Bill Stern replaced McNamee as NBC's college football man, Red Barber became director of sports at CBS and ABC (which had been NBC's Blue Network) introduced Harry Wismer, master of the unseen guest ("Bing Crosby just came into the booth, folks, hi Bing"). Barber presented a new concept of college football broadcasting called the "CBS Roundup."

Instead of broadcasting a single game, CBS had broadcast teams at a half-dozen different sites and the network cut from one to another for brief reports throughout the afternoon. Red Barber or Connie Desmond tied the whole thing together from a New York studio.

When I got to doing network broadcasts of college football games I thought back to McNamee and Husing and Stern, and I remembered the dramatic vignettes that Stern used to spin and the long and colorful descriptions of Ted Husing, and I wondered why I couldn't seem to do that.

Prepare as I might, I couldn't seem to find time to get my "colorful adlibs" into the broadcast. One team or the other always was cutting me short by snapping the ball, interrupting the dramatic presentation of my personality piece. For a long time, in frustration, I couldn't figure it out. And then I did.

Those early college football broadcasts all were unsponsored. In the trade it's called "sustaining." There were no commercials—no wonder they had time to embellish.

The early marriage of radio networks and college football was pure—it came in an age of innocence.

The New Chevrolet.

The 1979 Caprice Classic.

America has driven it to the top.

In just two short years over a million people have bought and enjoyed The New Chevrolet Caprice and Impala. Pretty darn impressive.

Of course, one reason for the success of The New Chevrolet is that it's simply a very beautiful car. And we suggest the '79 version is even more beautiful.

You're invited to visit the Chevrolet "Locker Room" exhibit at the National Football Foundation's new College Football Hall of Fame at King's Island (25 miles north of Cincinnati). This unique museum lets you participate in the fascinating history of college football. Don't miss it.

But then we know it takes more than beauty to become the most popular car in America. It takes roominess. It takes some very impressive standard features. It takes a smooth, comfortable ride. And more.

The New Chevrolet for 1979. Pleasing to the eye. Pleasing in lots of other ways, too.

It's no wonder America's driven it to the top. See your Chevrolet dealer.

Illinois

The University of Illinois is a state-wide network of education that ranks among the nation's top ten centers of higher learning.

All 102 Illinois counties are represented on the three campuses, which total a student enrollment of 59,223. The Urbana-Champaign campus has a student population of 33,946; there are 20,663 at Chicago Circle and 4,614 at the Medical Center in Chicago.

Even though Illinois enrollments are growing, the classroom size remains small and to the student's advantage. There are fewer than 30 students in more than three-fourths of all scheduled classes.

The quality of the University and its graduates reflects the strong support each has received from the people of Illinois throughout the school's first 110 years.

Outstanding achievements by Illinois students, faculty and alumni best exemplify that quality.

Students: At Urbana-Champaign, 85 percent of the incoming freshmen are in the top quarter, scholastically, of their high school classes. Volunteer Illini Projects — a program initiated and organized by students — was recognized as one of the top four volunteer service organizations in a recent nationwide competition.

Faculty: Illinois is regarded as one of the top four state universities in the nation in the quality of graduate programs, the American Council on Education reported recently. There are presently 26 Illinois faculty members on the National Academy of Sciences; 20 on the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and 21 on the National Academy of Engineering. Four professors have been honored with the National Medal of Science. Recently retired Dr. John Bardeen was among the most notable of the faculty, having received two Nobel Prizes in physics.

Alumni: Illinois is one of two major state universities in the country with the most alumni serving as chief executives of the country's largest corporations. Five alumni have been awarded Nobel Prizes.

The University's three-fold concept of research, education and service can be realized through the use of many unique on-campus facilities.

The Illinois Library is the largest and most comprehensive state university library in the nation and the fifth largest such in the world.

The Krannert Center for the Performing Arts serves a dual role: as an exceptional educational facility for students and as one of the finest cultural centers in the Midwest for the public.

Dr. John E. Corbally, who became the 13th president of the University of Illinois on Sept. 1, 1971, is the executive officer responsible to the system's Board of Trustees.

Illini Linebacker John Sullivan

In college football circles, there are schools that are immediately associated with producing standout players at one specific position in the line-up. Stanford, for example, is the school of quarterbacks: Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett, John Brodie, Mike Boryla and Guy Benjamin. Notre Dame is the home of standout defensive linemen: Leon Hart, Alan Page, Mike McCoy, Walt Patulski and Ross Browner. Syracuse is one of the most prolific molders of running backs. The Orangemen have such impressive names as Jim Brown, Ernie Davis, Floyd Little, Larry Csonka and Jim Nance among their graduates.

When it comes to linebacker tradition though, the University of Illinois takes a back seat to no one. Among the Fighting Illini athletes who have occupied the position that is the "heart of the defense" are Dick Butkus, Ray Nitschke, Don Hansen, Tom Hicks and Scott Studwell.

Currently on the Illinois roster is a linebacker making a strong bid to be included among the all-time greats listed above. John Sullivan stormed back from a knee injury which sidelined him two years ago to shatter nearly every Fighting Illini tackling record in 1977. The New York native was twice named Midwest Defensive Player of the Week by news wire services, received Illinois' Most Valuable Defensive Player Award and was accorded first team all-Big Ten honors. He bettered the school's single game tackle mark previously held by Butkus, Hicks and Studwell with 27 stops against Syracuse and then a phenomenal 34 tackles versus Minnesota. "Sully" also surpassed the single season mark held by Studwell, his ex-roomie now with the Minnesota Vikings, by totalling 202 tackles on the year. He shattered the Illini career tackle that belonged to the legendary Butkus in the second game of the year against Michigan. He will finish his career with nearly 500 tackles.

Sullivan possesses some of the same imposing physical characteristics as Butkus. The 6-2, 222 pounder is the strongest player on the Illini team, bench pressing 450 pounds and one of the more aggressive tacklers in the Conference.

"He's one of the most aggressive players I've ever coached," states second year head coach Gary Moeller. "His great determination and strength are his most obvious assets. He's as good as any linebacker in the Big Ten and maybe in the country. John's been a leader for us all along. I can't imagine where we'd be without him."

Sullivan's teammates have recognized those leadership qualities by electing him co-captain for this season.

A native of Massapequa Park, New York, Sullivan was heavily recruited out of St. John the Baptist High School. He has played at Illinois in what could be considered a transitional period with one coach leaving halfway through "Sully's" career and a new coach arriving with an entirely different defensive system that had to be adapted to.

"I've learned a lot under Coach Moeller in two years, getting used to the 5-2 defense," maintains Sullivan. "It's made me a better player. I think he's a great coach and he knows what he's doing. I have a lot of faith in the future of this football team. They're going to be really good in a couple of years — especially with another class or two of recruits like we've had the last couple of seasons. Sure there have been disappointments in my career here, but I love it at Illinois. Coming here has paid off in the long run. I couldn't have made a better decision."

In a career as illustrious as John Sullivan's, disappointments are few and far between. Wherever he goes when he leaves Illinois, he will leave a good many memories for U. of I. fans and will make a distinguished addition to the linebacking tradition of the Fighting Illini.

Here's the best gift idea of the year. Kroger Command Performance Steaks. Let us pick and package some for you.

Command Performance Steaks

When America's third-largest beef retailer sets out to find a really good steak, you can bet he'll find it. It stands to reason.

The Kroger Co. operates 1,234 supermarkets in 21 states, where we sell enormous amounts of beef—good beef. Kroger is less widely known as a supplier of beef to fine restaurants, and as a packer of gift steak packages, but we sell a lot of beef that way, too—excellent beef.

We call our gift steaks COMMAND PERFORMANCE steaks because they're specially selected, out-of-the-ordinary steaks. We recommend them for your own use, for personal gifts, business gifts or business incentive awards.

Available are luscious Filets Mignon in two sizes, majestic Porterhouse Steaks, regal boneless Rib Steaks, princely semi-boneless Strip Steaks, queenly boneless Rib Eye Steaks, peerless boneless Sirloin Strip Steaks.

Steaks are individually wrapped, then flash-frozen and placed in handsome foil-lined gift boxes. These, in turn, are placed in sturdy reusable insulated picnic coolers for delivery anywhere within the continental United States.

Please let us send you our complete informative brochure about our COMMAND PERFORMANCE steaks (mail this coupon today), or just phone us at (614) 861-1560.

At the end of this season, this team will be number one.

The Kodak All-America Team

It's one of the oldest and smallest teams in college football. It doesn't have a win-loss record. It doesn't set rushing records, and it has never scored a touchdown. Yet, at the end of the 1978 season, the Kodak All-America Team will be the number one team in college football.

What this team will have is the 22 very best players of the season. Twenty-two men who have earned the right to be called All-American. No amount of popularity or publicity can put a player on this team if he doesn't deserve to be there. It is a distinction which is earned with outstanding ability, sportsmanship and leadership. And these players have to prove themselves to the toughest coaches of all, the American Football Coaches Association.

The Kodak All-America Team is

The 1978 Kodak All-Americans
...watch for them.

A KODAK SPORTS PROGRAM

the only team which represents the choice of the more than 2,000 college and university coaches who are the American Football Coaches Association. Their standards are exacting, for this is a team that for 89 years has included the greatest names in college football.

The 1978 Kodak All-America Team has yet to be selected. The field is large, for there are more than 12,000 players from which to choose. But when the season ends, a handful of men will have distinguished themselves, and earned the honor of being on the number one team in college football.

The Graduate Assistants

Robert H. Essenhigh

There are 13 endowed faculty chairs at The Ohio State University. These chairs, supported by major private gifts to the university through the Development Fund, allow Ohio State to enrich its academic programs by providing students and faculty with direct access to and contact with eminent men and women representing the very best in thought and scholarship in their fields.

DISTINGUISHED PROFESSORS: Examples of Excellence

"Neither crisis nor conspiracy but somewhere in between" is the way Professor Robert H. Essenhigh of Ohio State's department of mechanical engineering characterizes the energy shortage.

"If we make that assumption," says the first holder of the Ervin G. Bailey Chair in Energy Conversion, "then we have 10 to 15 years to develop another primary energy source."

Those primary sources are the fossil fuels, oil, gas and coal, the most plentiful of the three.

Essenhigh joined Ohio State's College of Engineering faculty in July from Pennsylvania State University, where he was professor of fuel science in the Combustion Laboratory since 1961.

He is author of nearly 80 research papers on combustion, air pollution and related subjects. Before coming to this country he served as director of the Sheffield University research program on combustion of pulverized coal and as scientific officer in the British Ministry of Power, researching dust explosions.

Welcome home to dinner.

Right here in Columbus there's a restaurant that takes you back home. Back East to a New England shore dinner, down South to Creole cookery, through apple-fragrant kitchens of the Heartlands, to the spicy flavors of the Southwest. All this is One Nation, the one restaurant where you come home to American cooking. One Nationwide Plaza. 221-0001 for reservations.

William R. Riley, associate professor of physics at Ohio State, lectures to a group of central Ohio high school physics teachers during a Saturday morning session.

Math Projects Aid High Schools

Ohio State's College of Mathematical and Physical Sciences is taking an active part in improving the preparation of high school seniors for college careers.

In one approach the college is working with high schools to beat the steady decline in math proficiency among college freshmen.

Begun last year with Westland High School in Columbus, officials say initial results look promising. Nearly twice as many Westland seniors are taking mathematics courses this year as were enrolled a year ago.

Now the project has been extended to six other high schools — Ready, Linden McKinley, West and Wherle high schools in Columbus, plus Grove City and Hilliard high schools.

Two other projects are aimed at helping high school teachers do a better job, too.

One program offers some 75 central Ohio elementary and secondary teachers opportunities to improve their math during evenings and Saturday mornings.

The teachers are taking courses within their school districts on math topics, tailored to their individual schools. The instruction extends their preparation beyond their undergraduate training.

Another in-service instruction program began this fall for some 30 central Ohio high school teachers of physics.

They commute to the campus for special lectures, laboratory work, and individualized studies. Sponsored by the National Science Foundation, the program continues autumn, winter and spring quarters.

The main function of the college, of course, is the education of large numbers of undergraduate — 14,000 in math courses alone this quarter — and graduate students, whose learning experiences are coupled with the college's extensive research programs.

They work in such areas as ultra-low temperature physics, satellite studies of the earth's gravitational field and the chemistry of carcinogens.

Graduate and undergraduate students, including men and women, accompany faculty leaders conducting geological and glaciological research in Antarctica and Alaska.

Other graduates gain valuable experience working through the Statistics Laboratory on data problems generated by researchers in many areas, including those working with the athletic teams.

Making Big Waves With Small Ripples

National championship athletic teams are not uncommon at The Ohio State University. Any sports fan knows that. And, as any follower of aquatic sports knows, the best collegiate synchronized swimming team in the country is at Ohio State.

Last year, the Lady Buckeye synchronized swimmers out-manuevered all competitors to capture their second consecutive National Intercollegiate Championship. The title, which is awarded on the basis of the highest cumulative score in solo, duet, trio and team events, included championship performances by sophomore Cory Lamb (Santa Ana, Calif.) and Cindy Ott (Miami, Fla.) who successfully defended their duo title, and then, teamed with sophomore Jill Vincent (Grove City, O.), defended their trio title.

As had been the case in 1977, when the Lady Buckeyes won their first national title, Ohio State virtually dominated the 1978 meet. But, those two titles only crown a long list of honors that have been earned by Dr. Mary Jo Ruggieri's teams since 1970 when she took the head coach's position. Besides two national team titles, Ohio State has, for the past nine years, held the OAISW (state) and MAIAW (Midwest Region) titles. The Lady Buckeyes have also had the distinction of never having been defeated in intercollegiate team competition.

Under Ruggieri's nine years of progressive leadership, the synchronized swimming program at Ohio State has emerged from obscurity, pacing a national trend in its rapid development of synchronized swimming as a serious sport. Not to be confused with the Water Babies and the aquatic pageantry of Esther Williams' era, synchronized swimming is a subjectively judged competition that is unlike any other athletic event, according to the coach.

"It's an event all its own," Ruggieri said. "But, I suppose if I had to compare it to another sport, it is most like figure skating."

Ruggieri's roster of swimmers alludes to the prominence which the OSU program has attained under her direction. It has a large delegation from the West Coast, the AAU synchronized swimming stronghold. Two of the newest Lady Buckeyes, freshman Karen Callaghan, Danville, Calif., and sophomore Tara Cameron, San Mateo, Calif., are, after three weeks at Ohio State, acclimating to all the change that resulted from their Midwest transplant. But, neither has a second thought about her reason for being at OSU; as grant-in-aid athletes, they are anxious to swim, as well as pursue an education, and they know they are swimming for the best program in one of the best educational environments in the country.

The atmosphere that envelopes team practices in Peppe Aquatic Center is intense. The collective concentration of the team pervades the pool. Ruggieri, constantly alert to coordinating minute movements in a way that has put the Lady Buckeyes in a class alone, observed that the mind set of the national-level synchronized swimmer demands constant criticism and constant analysis.

"These athletes demand criticism. I've got to give them the capability to be the best, and that means critiquing every movement, the coach said. "It means hours and hours of individual work, as well as work with the team."

The development and composition of the routines performed by the Lady Buckeyes is a task Ruggieri shares with her swimmers, all of whom provide continual input while a routine is being perfected. Even the selection of music is a tremendous chore, requiring arduous hours of reviewing, taping, cutting and splicing recordings.

Aware that her own efforts in promoting synchronized swimming have increased its popularity on a national scale, Ruggieri admits that retention of the national crown will be more difficult this year than ever before, but she is working to increase the stature of the sport beyond Ohio State.

Ruggieri believes that Olympic exposure will accelerate the growth of synchronized swimming, just as the games greatly affected the popularity of women's gymnastics. Ohio State will also be the site of the 1979 AAU National Championships, April 8-15, a mammoth event that will bring approximately 75 synchronized swimming teams to the campus in April. Ruggieri is certain that the AAU nationals will have the same affect for synchronized swimming at Ohio State that the Olympic exposure will have on the sport nationally.

Ohio State Fight Songs

The Cheerleaders

ACROSS THE FIELD

Fight that team across the field,
Show them Ohio's here,
Set the earth reverberating with a mighty cheer
Rah! Rah! Rah!
Hit them hard and see how they fall;
Never let that team get the ball,
Hail! Hail! the gang's all here,
So let's win that old conference now.

CARMEN OHIO

Oh! Come let's sing Ohio's praise,
And songs to Alma Mater raise;
While our hearts rebounding thrill,
With joy which death alone can still.
Summer's heat or Winter's cold,
The seasons pass, the years will roll;
Time and change will surely show
How firm thy friendship O-hi-o.

BUCKEYE BATTLE CRY

In old Ohio there's a team,
That's known thru-out the land;
Eleven warriors, brave and bold,
Whose fame will ever stand,
And when the ball goes over,
Our cheers will reach the sky,
Ohio Field will hear again
The Buckeye Battle Cry —.

Drive! Drive on down the field,
Men of the scarlet and gray;
Don't let them thru that line,
We have to win this game today,
Come on, Ohio!
Smash thru to victory
We cheer you as we go:
Our honor defend
So we'll fight to the end for O Hi o.

People say OSU is a football school. It Is - And much more.

At Ohio State University we are more than a Saturday afternoon in Ohio Stadium. This year our only national championship was won by our women's synchronized swimming team. And women are active competitors in 11 other intercollegiate sports. In fact, women play vital roles in the growth and development of OSU athletics.

We bet you never knew that:

The first national women's golf tournament ever held in the United States on an intercollegiate level was organized at Ohio State. Rules adopted for that competition served as the national model for later tournaments and championships in other sports.

- AIAW (the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, the NCAA counterpart for women, had its beginnings at Ohio State.

- OSU women's sports have top ranking with conference championships last year in basketball, volleyball, and tennis, and impressive seasons in golf, and indoor and outdoor track.

- The first national championship ever awarded in synchronized swimming went to Ohio State in 1976-77. We also won it this year.

- More than 200 women will compete in 12 intercollegiate sports.
- There's been a fifteen-fold increase in money set aside for women's athletics over the past six years.
- 82 athletic grants-in-aid will be awarded this year to women at OSU.

At Ohio State we are known for more than our prowess on the gridiron. Our women's sports program is well on its way to being the best in the nation.
